General Petrit Dume of the Albanian Army is now in Prague with an Albanian military mission, where he is negotiating for an increase in Czechoslovak military aid for the Albanian Army. A large quantity of Czechoslovak arms, including tanks of the model of 1950, will be sent to Albania to equip units of anti-Titoist partisans now being formed on Albanian territory. Such units are intended to go into action soon in Macedonia, where an anti-Tito movement in favor of Moscow is being pushed.
